

beyond princesses and pirates

Promoting Gender Equality and Challenging
Gender Stereotypes

A Guide to Children's Picture Books

More information

If you have any queries about this resource, please contact the Gender Equity Officer via healthandwellbeing@maribyrnong.vic.gov.au

Published March, 2018

References

Darebin City Council Creating Gender Equity in the Early Years (2017) www.mav.asn.au/policy-services/social-community/gender-equality/Pages/promising-practice-portal.aspx#Darebin

Monash City Council & VicHealth - Generating Equality and Respect Project Promoting Gender Equality and Challenging Gender Stereotypes Children's Picture Books (2015) www.monash.vic.gov.au/Services/Health-Safety/Prevention-of-Violence-Against-Women/Generating-Equality-and-Respect-Program

Womens Health East No Limitations – Breaking down gender stereotypes in the early years. A guide for early years educators (WHE, 2017). whe.org.au/resources/no-limitations-resources/

Womens Health East, Access Health and Community Free to be me book selection checklist (Available online March 2018) whe.org.au/wp-content/uploads/sites/3/2017/10/Access-HandC_Book-Selection-Checklist_.pdf

Because Why (Our Watch, 2018) www.ourwatch.org.au/Because-Why/Menu-Item/About-Because-Why

What are gender stereotypes?

Gender describes masculinity and femininity and refers to the socially learnt roles, behaviours, activities and attributes that any given society considers appropriate for men and women; boys and girls.

Gender stereotypes are broadly accepted ideas about the way males and females should behave. Common gender stereotypes include that men shouldn't cry; that females are naturally caring and emotional; that boys like trucks, sport and want to be superheroes; and that girls like dolls and aspire to be princesses.

Why is it important to challenge gender stereotypes?

Rigid gender stereotyping promotes inequality between the sexes and can set children up to expect and accept power imbalances within relationships later in life. Presenting children with positive and diverse representations of gender teaches them that anything is possible and to see others as equals.

Some Girls

Nelly Thomas and Sarah Dunk

Some girls are good with cars and bikes. Some girls are good with art and kites. Some girls are good with puzzles and maths. And some girls are good with dolls and cats. Some Girls is a story about how everyone is different and special in their own way.

ISBN: 9780648147404, Piccolo Nero

The Family Hour in Australia

Tai Snaith

The Family Hour in Australia explores curious facts about endangered Australian animals that reflect some of the diversity seen in mixed, modern human families.

ISBN: 9780500500330, Thames and Hudson Australia

Who's That Knocking?

also published as Monsters are Knocking

Alison Lester

"Who's that knocking at our front door?" – so each page begins, with a mysterious house guest waiting to be discovered behind each flap. This is a fun story that shows that things are not always as they appear.

ISBN: 9780143502951, Picture Puffin

Be Brave Little One

Marianne Richmond

Be Brave Little One honours and celebrates the power of courage in every child.

ISBN: 9781492658818, Sourcebooks

Buildablock

Christopher Franceschelli & Peskimo

Children will discover male and female workers sharing and enjoying many of the jobs on a construction site.

ISBN: 978-1419725692, Harry N. Abrams

Circus Girl

Clare Pernice

Circus Girl is the “star” of the show – she can accomplish anything. She is courageous, bold, daring and full of confidence.

ISBN: 9781927018361, Simple Read Books

Clive is a Nurse

Jessica Spanyol

Follow Clive and his friends as they explore the many things a nurse does in a day.

ISBN: 9781846439919, Child's Play

I'm a Girl

Yasmeen Ismail

Meet a little girl who is spontaneous, fast, strong, and loves winning. Sometimes she's mistaken for a boy, but she definitely isn't one! When she meets a boy who likes wearing princess dresses and playing dolls, they quickly discover shared interests and a wonderful friendship.

ISBN: 9781408858486, Bloomsbury Children's Books

Olivia and the Fairy Princesses

Ian Falconer

Olivia, the plucky piglet, embarks upon a quest for identity with very lofty goals – and being a princess in pink is NOT one of them!

ISBN: 9781442450271, Atheneum Books for Young Readers

Princess Smartypants

Babette Cole

Princess Smartypants does not want to get married. Find out how she fights to preserve her independence in this hilarious fairy-tale-with-a-difference.

ISBN: 978-0399243981, Penguin Random House

Red: A Crayon Story

Michael Hall

A funny, heart-warming and colourful story about finding the courage to be true to your inner self.

ISBN: 9780062252098, Harper Collins

Roadworks, Demolition, Construction Series

Sally Sutton and Brian Lovelock

A series of books that depicts the busy women and men involved in building a road, demolishing an old building to make way for a park, and constructing a library.

ISBN: 9781921529269, Walker Books Australia and New Zealand

Rosie Revere, Engineer

Andrea Beaty and David Roberts

Rosie may seem quiet during the day, but at night she's a brilliant inventor of gizmos and gadgets who dreams of becoming a great engineer.

ISBN: 13 9781419708459, Abrams Books for Young Readers

Things to consider

When selecting reading material with your children you could consider the following points:

- Are there both female and male characters in prominent roles?
- Does the story challenge gender roles?
- Do female and male characters in the story have the same opportunities?
- When characters have non-stereotypical qualities or interests, is this portrayed as something normal and is it welcomed?

About this guide

The content of many children's picture books keeps gender stereotypes alive, depicting boys as active, physically strong, heroic central characters, and girls as pretty, passive characters in search of a prince.

This guide provides parents, grandparents, carers and teachers with a range of stories that are available at Maribyrnong's libraries that present alternative ideas about what children can be, what they can be interested in and what they can achieve.

These books can be used to encourage discussion, broader thinking and directly challenge harmful gender stereotypes with children in a way that is easy to understand.

